

 Press Release *****

The Albuquerque Chapter of the Construction Specifications Institute announces its 8th annual Continuing Education Conference and Product Show. The event will be held at the Albuquerque Convention Center, East Complex on Wednesday October 17, 2007. The conference is highlighted by luncheon keynote speaker Mark Holland, the City's Sustainable Design Consultant charged with helping formulate Albuquerque's forward-looking Green Strategy.

The conference, planned for Architects, Designers, Engineers, Contractors and Construction Product Representatives, offers 7 AIA/CES Continuing Education Units available from 19 sessions held throughout the day.

The Construction Specifications Institute (CSI) is dedicated to providing the tools for ensuring clear communication of Building Design information from the Design Team to the Builder Team. Many of this year's programs will relate directly to projects conforming to LEED Certification criteria required on State and City Building Projects mandated by Executive Order.

For more information and to attend this year's conference please visit www.csialbuquerque.org for on-line program descriptions, registration & payment information. Please direct questions or other requests to Conference Planning Chair David Vaughan, Upland Corporation, 505-974-1534, or Robert Mallory at Southwest Noise Control, 505-254-9000.